

Our History

Long before there was sushi, or even automobiles in Livermore, Mally's was here. We have a rich history in Livermore, going back over 100 years to the original Mally Hotel. It was located on the south side of First Street. The restaurant has moved twice from its original location.

First, it moved to the north side of the street after the Mally hotel was demolished. In the beginning it was still mostly a "grill", with many years to pass before sushi was added. Sushi finally came to the menu around 1992, at the same time "New" was added to the famous Mally's name to emphasize the refreshing changes that were taking place.

Nearby, Stovepipe Deli had been the other "secret" sushi treasure in Livermore during this time period, known mostly to locals and a few Dublin and Pleasanton sushi lovers. In 2004 when Stove Pipe was offered for sale, it was purchased to become the "newer" Mally's home, here at 385 South Livermore Avenue.

Sure, the name "Mally's" might still sound more like an Irish pub than the coolest sushi spot in the valley, but don't let the name fool you! There is no such thing as Irish sushi; it's conventional sushi in an Irish sounding restaurant.

Our current menu reflects the years of refinement from both Stove Pipe and New Mally's. The classic Stove Pipe selections are still here, but with some new menu items and the distinct preparation techniques that came with us from our New Mally's tradition.

Welcome, and enjoy.
